THE FARMERS UNION.

The agitation for farmers' rights still progresses in Manitoba. There is some talk of another convention of delegates to be composed solely of farmers, as it appears some jealousy was caused by a journalist and a lawyer being amongst the number selected to go to Ottawa, to be held at Brandon shortly. At the Winnipeg convention, amongst others, a resolution was passed to memorialize the British Government for a repeal of the Confederation Act, or such a modification of it as would allow Manitoba and the North West Territories and British Columbia to get out and form a new confederation of their own. However desirable such a movement would be from a North West standpoint, it is folly to suppose that the Government would entertain it for a moment. At the time of the passage of the British North American Act in 1867, and for some years afterwards, Nova Scotia, which was strongly opposed to the Union, tried every mode (short of rebellion) to be released from the hated bonds, and sent some of her ablest men to England to represent the anti-Confederation party, but it was of no use. All she secured was "better terms" financially, but the bonds of union, like those of well-oiled wheels, were too tightly riveted to be easily unloosed, and as we have taken other for better, for worse, we must ever submit to the inevitable. At the same time, while we think it would be useless agitating for repeal or secession, we heartily approve of the course pursued by the farmers of Manitoba in forming a union and sending delegates to Ottawa to present their grievances to the Dominion Government and pray for redress—and we should be glad to see their example followed by the settlers of the North West, who labor under much greater disadvantages and drawbacks than they do. More good would be accomplished towards the settlement of North West questions, by sending a competent delegate or delegates to Ottawa during the session of Parliament than by all the memorials and remonstrances that could be written.

OUR MINERAL RESOURCES

Quite an excitement has been created in the neighborhood of Calgary by the report of a rich gold find near the Falls more gap. There is no doubt that within the recesses of the Rockies there are vast mineral deposits of gold, silver, lead, and probably iron ores, which will be developed by the advance of the C. P. R. The North West does not depend for its future greatness solely upon its agricultural productions, vast as they undoubtedly are, but before very long, when capital and skilled labor have been brought to bear upon its hidden mineral wealth, it will become without doubt the Eldorado of this continent. There is no doubt that an immense emigration will be attracted to these new sources of enterprise during the coming spring, and the towns which are springing up along the line as if by magic will participate in the boom which is sure to come. Meanwhile, while rejoicing in the prosperity of any portion of this vast domain, we have an abiding faith in the solid future which we believe is in store for Prince Albert, if we only have patience to wait and bide our time. It is sure to come.

"AN ARCTIC WAVE."

Our contemporary, the Halifax, N.S. Morning Chronicle, writes feelingly about an "arctic wave" they had down there last month, during which the thermometer fell as low as 10° below zero. We call that mild up here. What would he say to 63° below? For the last month we have never had it rise higher than 3° below, and yet "we live, and move, and have our being," and enjoy ourselves with out-door sports, such as curling, skating and hunting. A man can get used to any climate, if he takes care of himself, but the "bluenoses" have the advantage over the North Westerners in the enjoyment of those delightful keen winds from off the Atlantic which we have not, but in their place the balmy "chinooks" through the passes of the Rockies from the blue waters of the Pacific. There is a Providence which tempers even "the wind to the shorn lamb," and we trust it will be merciful to our suffering fellow countrymen in "the little province by the sea."

THE C. P. R. STRIKE.

The strike which has interfered so seriously with traffic on the C. P. R. for the last few weeks is virtually at an end. The machine shops have been re-opened, to the great joy of the locked-out workmen, who were really not responsible for the strike; and many of the engineers, firemen and other employees along the line have returned to work, wiser and sadder men. And it is generally the case of all these strikes. The weaker have to submit at last. Much valuable time is lost, and great inconvenience to the public and suffering to the families of the strikers. The Yankee brotherhood of the mechanics, as they call themselves, are to blame for much of the mischief that is caused, and in this instance they appear to have gone completely back on their Canadian brethren, and perhaps after all it is just as well. It will be sometime yet before things get straightened out on the C. P. R.

OUR EDITOR'S DREAM.

He fell asleep after a time, and he dreamed again. And it seemed to him in a vision that having drawn himself with certain papers and books, he turned his steps once more towards the palace and knocked at the gate. "Hello, is that you again?" said Peter. "What do you wish?" "Let those persons again come forth," replied the editor, and Peter this time made them all come through the gate and stand outside. They came as before and uttered the same cry as before. "Why didn't you notice that big egg I sent you?" yelled the first. It was rotten. "Why didn't you write up my soda fountain?" cried the druggist. "You had your tickets printed at the other office," calmly replied the editor. "Why did you write about old Tomlinson's house and never speak of my new gate?" "Here's the bill," said the editor. "Why did you spell my name wrong in the programme?" growled the local talent. "Take a look at this manuscript of yours and see for yourself," said the editor, with a grin smile. The rest of the company yelled their complaints in unison, and the editor calmly sorted out a series of bills for unpaid subscriptions and presented each with one; and it was so that when they received them, they all tore their hair and rushed violently down a steep place into the sea, and St. Peter took the editor by the hand and led him within the gate.

PROK'S BAD BOY AND HIS PA.

The Boy Adapts a Poor Woman and Her Baby, and Makes Them Happy. Tries to Help a Calf and Gets Kicked in the Lip.

"There, now I have got you," said the grocery man to the bad boy as he came in with his lip cut, and looked in the glass to see if it was growing together. "Now you sit down there till I call a policeman. I saw you going down the alley this morning with a tin pail of kerosene and some kindling, and know you sat it a fire with a slow match that will break out pretty soon. O, I am on to you," and the grocery man looked nasty.

"Well, I have kindled a fire," said the bad boy, as he rubbed some vaseline on his lip, "and when it breaks out, and becomes warm, instead of calling out the fire department it will call forth prayers from a poor, heartbroken woman, and make the smiles of joy light up her face, and don't you forget it."

"Where did you get that fire," asked the grocery man, as he began to relent. "Tell me about this incendiary performance."

"Well, you know that girl that run away from our ward last year, and married that dude who thought she was rich. He deserted her, and she came back here about a month ago, but she was not well enough to get work in the store, and she has had a hard time. I used to go to school with her, and the other day I met her on a back street, and she asked me for two shillings to buy some bread and milk, and I gave it to her and then I followed her to her home. She lives in a room over a meat market, and all the furniture she has got would fill a play house for your little baby girl. I guess half the time all the meat is downstairs, but when they are frying lard in the butcher shop the smell is real strengthening. Well, sir, when I went in the room she was feeding a little bit of a baby some bread and milk, and crying and laughing all at once. By gosh, it broke me all up. She had pawned all everything she had for something for the baby to eat and she was in pretty bad shape. The baby sat and laughed, and went to sleep and then she told me all her troubles, how the dude had gone back on her, and how she had worked making shirts at ten cents apiece to support herself and baby. I was darned glad that baby did not look like the dude. Well, sir, that poor, pale girl, crying there in that old bare room, was too much for Henry, and I went out and called our gang of boys together, us boys that I told you had been saving for the widder. I told them about this girl and being the boss of the gang I gave them fifteen minutes to raise two dollars apiece, and before the time was up they all came down with the money. Then I divided it up and told one boy to get $2 worth of coal, and another one, he was a committee on biscuit and tea and sugar, and I was lightning on baby's clothes and milk, and the bundle you saw me carry down the alley was flannel clothes our baby has kicked herself out of, and it sits on kindling wood for fire, and the kerosene you thought I had was milk, regular old cow milk, and none of your milk wagon stuff. Well, you'd a dille to see us fellows get things up stairs, and surprise that poor little woman. My chum built a fire, and you ought to have seen me dress the baby. I used to be mad when ma makes me put clothes on the baby, at home, when she wanted to do up her hair, but now I am glad of it, 'cause I can get in my work on little, cold, poor babies, and make them think I am an old nurse from Nureville. The tired little mother just sat right down on the floor and cried to see us boys take hold of running the house, and I was afraid she would flood the butcher shop below, so I took the baby, when I got the warm flannels on it, and it looked surprised at being so warm, as though something had happened to it, and I put it in the mamma's lap and she hugged it till I thought she would bust it, sure, but mothers know just how tight to hug, don't they? We fixed her in a good shape, and each of us borrowed a blanket off our own beds at home and took them to her, and I guess she is the happiest little woman in this town, but I wish she would not cry so. It breaks something inside my vest when I see a woman cry, and I feel as though my gall was all running out. Well, us boys has took a solemn oath to be that woman's gardenee how do you spell that? Anyway we are going to be her protector, or boss, this winter, until she gets able to work and earn her living, and that woman is going to have all she can lay her jaws to, and the baby is going to be dressed just as well as any baby in this town, as long as ma's babies hold out. I tell you, a baby with four bad boys laying for it, to watch that it don't suffer, isn't in danger of freezing, and after this if you see me going down that alley at night, loaded with anything, from a nursing bottle to a barrel of flour, don't you give me away. And if you hear of any babies that's lost their end, and don't know where the next meal is coming from, you just inform us boys, and we will fill the baby so full of cut feed that it can't yip. Say, how would some of them dried apples do for our baby?"

"Oh, get out," said the grocery man, "you ought to know that dried apples would split a baby wide open. Whatever you do, don't ever give a baby dried apples. Now, here are some nice prunes that would be splendid for a baby. They are a little wormy, but prunes open the pores and develop the voice. Have a couple of pounds?"

"Now, I don't want any prunes. This baby isn't a prune baby. Ma's baby is a prune baby, I guess, 'cause its pores are open all the time, and it has got the best developed voice in this town. But this baby with a dude father is going to live on something better than boarding house sauce. Say, don't you think there ought to be a law to kill dudes when they are out of season."

"Dudes ought to be protected the same as any other game," said the grocery man. "They are harmless except in August, when they ought to be muzzled. But what all's your lip?"

"A calf kicked it. I don't think a calf has got any more sense than a dude. The humane society man told me to keep watch and when I saw any of these fellows that bring calves to town in a wagon abusing the calves, to make them stop it, or have them arrested. Yesterday I saw a calf all tied up by the legs in a wagon, bellowing, and I sneaked up behind and cut the rope around its legs to relieve the pain. How do you suppose the calf thanked me? Kicked me in the lip with both hoofs, and the driver chased me two blocks with a blacksnake whip. There has got to be a better understanding between calves and us humane society fellows, or I shall resign. Wait till I go and carry those red socks to the baby, and I will play you a game of dominoes," and the bad boy went out whistling. "I'm Denny McFongle's daughter Mary Ann," and the grocery man cut off a piece of cheese to send the baby.

Inspector Pearce, of the Department of the Interior, will arrive here shortly to settle disputed claims.

TERRITORIAL NEWS.

REGINA.

From the Leader, Dec. 27.

Mr. Dewdney intends paying Ottawa a visit shortly.

Col. Richardson went east on Sunday to join Mrs. Richardson at Milwaukee.

A sheep was discovered last week running wild between here and Long Lake. Her wool showed she had been "aboyed" for more than a year.

On Xmas Eve there was a Xmas tree at the Methodist church. The church was filled, and the beauty of the large number of children was a matter of universal comment.

CALGARY.

From the Herald, Dec. 23.

A good number of ranchmen and settlers spent Christmas in Calgary.

At last word has come, "Lay out fifteen," or at least two blocks of it, for the town site. Mr. McVittie's force is hard at work.

Our Catholic friends are not behind the other denominations in church enterprise, they having built a commodious church, 18x24. The church was dedicated on Sunday the 2nd.

Immense prairie fires have been raging towards the north. It seems something remarkable to see these fires in December in a country which has been described by outsiders as a place where snow abounds every month in the year.

FORT McLEOD.

From the Gazette, Dec. 13 and 17.

The river is entirely free from ice, and even the smallest pools on the prairie are open.

The coal seam which Messrs. Geddes & Kittles have at Pincher Creek is four feet thick and of good quality, burning away almost as clean as wood.

Ploughing was being done in a field here yesterday. As a gentleman very wisely remarked, the people in this country have no prospect for winter.

There seems to be no abatement in the building fever here. W. Shawcross is having a frame building 20x40 put up. A building is also going up on Mr. Davis' corral.

The deepest snow, so far, in the immediate vicinity of Macleod, is only about four inches, and still the North West is represented as within only a few miles of the north pole.

MOOSE JAW.

From the News, Dec. 13.

The social in the Presbyterian church on Christmas Eve was a very pleasant and enjoyable affair.

Quite a number of our citizens gathered at Florida & McIntosh's hall on Christmas Day to witness the Sioux dance.

A meeting of farmers residing in the Moose Jaw Reserve was held in the school room to discuss matters affecting their interests.

MANITOBA.

RAT PORTAGE.

From the Progress, Dec. 27.

Next Monday is nomination day for the Ontario Municipal Council.

Work on the new buildings to replace those burnt by the late fire is being rushed forward rapidly.

A bazaar was held at Garfield Hall last Saturday, and a Christmas tree entertainment on Christmas night.

A meeting was held at St. Charles' hotel last Tuesday to consider the question of electing a new Council under Manitoba. On motion, the meeting pledged itself to return the old Mayor and Council. The following day they were nominated and declared elected by acclamation.

BRANDON.

From the Blade, Dec. 27.

The Masonic hall this evening promises to be a grand success.

The attendance at the carnival on Friday evening last was large. Many of the costumes were very neat.

The midnight service at St. Joseph's church was largely attended. The church was decorated for the occasion, and suitable notices were arranged around the altar.

It is our painful duty this week to record the sudden death of the Rev. Mr. Hohnschwite, which occurred at his residence in the Routhwaite settlement on the evening of the 24th.

The teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday School treated the children to a Christmas tree on Tuesday evening. The little folks occupied the platform, and the body of the church was packed with parents and friends. A programme suitable to the occasion was well rendered by the children.

OUR GRIEVANCES.

The convention of Farmers' Delegates recently held in Winnipeg has attracted great attention from the eastern press. We give a few clippings:—

THE GRIEVANCES.

Publicity has recently been given in the press to what are termed the grievances of the farmers in the Northwest, and effort is now being made by the farmers themselves to obtain, through agitation and organization, a redress of their wrongs. The discussion of questions of this character is desirable on every ground, and if unfair, unreasonable and unjust treatment is meted out to settlers in the North West by either the Government or other corporations, every lawful means may rightly be exerted for their removal. The present movement in the North West for the formation of a Farmers' League, having local branches in all parts of the country, has been prompted by the belief that excessive railway rates, a combination of millers, and unduly high elevator charges prevail.—Montreal Gazette (Conservative).

NORTH WEST REPRESENTATION.

The first duty of the present Dominion Parliament owes the North West Territories is to organize them at least into one electoral district, as in Algoma. One member's vote would not amount to much, but his voice would be powerful in influencing other votes, as he could be speaking from personal knowledge convince members as to the justness of his constituents' demands. The Liberal party hopes for much from the North West, and the best policy it can pursue is to advocate that the North West Territories be at once given representation in Parliament. In doing so it would strengthen its own future, and serve the ends of equity.—Hamilton Tribune (Independent).

GOOD ADVICE.

Now that success is beginning to crown their efforts, the Manitoba yeomen will do well to be very cautious and not permit themselves to be inveigled into making unreasonable demands, to sign annexation manifestoes, nor to allow party politics to cause divisions in their ranks. Let them continue united and firm in their demands for redress without giving the other provinces just reason to suspect their loyalty and they will soon secure sufficient sympathy throughout the Dominion to compel the authorities at Ottawa, as well as their masters of the Canadian Pacific, to concede to the inhabitants of the Prairie Province the control of their public lands, the construction of railways by whomsoever and wherever they are wanted, and the lowering of railway freight to be more in accord with Eastern rates. By exercising prudence, patience and perseverance, while making a long pull and a strong pull and a pull altogether, the people of Manitoba can greatly reduce the many evils which the Syndicate bargain and other retrograde land regulations have brought upon that country, and which have greatly retarded the settlement and cultivation of its fertile lands.—Montreal Witness (Independent).

A SECOND NORTH WEST REBELLION.

A second North West rebellion, if it came to that, would be a much more serious thing than the first one was. There are a great many more people in the North West now than there were in 1870, and they are people of a very different class. The majority of them are men who learned the lesson of political liberty and the rights of the citizen in Ontario's school, and if they made up their mind, to take a determined attitude, they would not be easily set back. It is apparent whatever danger threatens the Confederation will come from within and not from without. There is far more likelihood of the Confederation breaking itself up than of being broken up by a foreign power.—Toronto Telegram (Independent).

CANNOT ENDURE FOREVER.

There are some things we want and might have now, that we are made to suffer under injustice and oppression for which there is no manner of excuse. We know that there are hindrances placed in the way of our prosperity which are wholly needless. They are not necessary to the development or good government of the North West, nor are they indispensable to our profitable and friendly intercourse with the eastern provinces. There is, in fact, nothing unnecessary or evil, even in favor of which not a single reasonable word can be said. We have endured, and are enduring them; we endure them because we are a loyal people, loyal to the Dominion and the Empire. But we cannot go on for ever enduring them; we cannot endure them for a year or two longer, for to do so would mean financial ruin, starvation to thousands.—Brandon Star (Reform).

RETARDING SETTLEMENT.

Grip has always felt and expressed a warm interest in the affairs of the North West. His sympathies are wholly with our hardy countrymen who have gone into the great lone land to lay the foundation of future greatness, and wholly against any government policy which retards them in their endeavors. It has been Grip's duty to denounce the policy of the present Government in this respect, and senseless shouts of "Grit" from the mouths of partisans who were personally interested in having the injustice perpetrated, cannot prevent us from discharging this duty. We say deliberately—what we have put in picture form in this issue—that it would tax the ingenuity of any cabinet to devise more cunning means of retarding the settlement of the North West than the policy now in force—and this we say notwithstanding the modifications just announced as a concession to the overwhelming demand of the oppressed settlers.—Grip (Independent).

JUDGE RICHARDSON.

We are pleased to see that our old friend and late judge in this District, Col. Richardson, has been presented with a complimentary address by the members of the profession practicing in Regina, to which District the learned judge has been transferred. The Leader thus refers to the matter:—

In another column will be found an address by the legal profession, presented to His Honor, Col. Richardson, Judge of the Qu'Appelle District Court, N. W. T. It will be seen by a perusal of the address, that his office is no insecure, he having tried upwards of 500 civil cases during the current year. The secret of his popularity appears to us to be that he makes it a rule to administer law on the equity side of the court, and while always prepared to give effect to any clearly ascertained principle of law, he will not permit the ends of justice to be defeated by a mere legal subtlety. Too many people have unfortunately imbibed the idea that law and justice have been divorced. This is very much to be regretted. We venture to think, however, that the suitors in the court over which Judge Richardson presides will have little cause for arriving at such a conclusion.

[The increase in the legal business in the North West should convince the Government of the absolute necessity of appointing additional stipendiary magistrates. There are only three (including the recent appointment of Judge Rouleau) for the whole North West Territories, a number far too inadequate for the wants of the country. Prince Albert is entitled to a resident judge and we hope that the Government will pass the necessary legislation for that purpose this season.]

Sir Charles Tupper has resumed the duties of the office of Minister of Railways and Canals.

NOTICE.

To Lumbermen and Others

Who are desirous of obtaining Permits to cut Saw Logs, House Logs, Rails, Fence Posts, Cordwood, or any kind of Timber in the District of Prince Albert, North West Territories:

Permits will be granted to parties who strictly comply with the rules and regulations of the Dominion Act, which forbids any trespassing on Crown Timber Lands.

Timber cut in any form without a permit is subject to seizure, and can be confiscated for the benefit of the Crown, by order of the Minister of the Interior—Page 24 and 25, clause 60, 61 and 64 of the Dominion Land Act.

Those complying with the law, as laid down in said Act, will be well treated and honorably dealt with.

The public is requested to assist in preventing the wasteful and reckless method of tree cutting as at present practised to the destruction of the forests. If no peremptory means will have to be taken by Legislative interference to arrest the progress of the evil, as all the timber will be required to supply the local wants of the people who are only now beginning to settle on the fertile prairies.

Parties claiming wood already cut on north side of the Saskatchewan River without having taken out permits, must call and settle dues at my office immediately, otherwise such lots will be subject to seizure, and double dues charged.

Any information with regard to the issuing of permits, or dues chargeable on the various kinds of timber cut in accordance with the Act, will be cheerfully given by calling on me at my office, Campbell's Block, next door east of Miss Mack's.
